Workshop overview

The last 10 years have been a season of unprecedented change in the real estate industry, from market changes to technological and regulatory changes (with no end in sight). Many people are rising and falling with the changes. So the big question is: "How can I be someone who rises to the top in the midst of change?" Steve Scanlon has coached hundreds of top performers through this very question. In this workshop, he looks at the fascinating neuroscience that shapes our actions in the midst of change, and shares his proven approach to sustainably grow your current business in the current season - and the next one.
